[LOS ANGELES] Occupy Wall Street at Zuccotti Park last night was evicted by Mayor Michael Bloomberg. The New York Police Department cleared the encampment shortly after midnight eastern standard time.

USTREAM.TV/theother99 provided a live stream of the event. It showed NYPD moving in with force to dismantle tents. Peaceful protestors were thrown from the camp. Some have called the park home for the past two months.

OLA News tweeted some eyewitness accounts from the stream and during the raid. OLA News continued to do so up through most of the early morning. They are included below along with other twitter.com postings that occurred during the camp's massive invasion by the New York authorities.

@OccupyLANews at the beginning of the raid heard USTREAM.TV/theother99's Tim Pool say, "An all nighter here at Occupy Wall Street. We have heard the police say the 'Occupation ends here.'"

Pool, "I asked the press why are you guys leaving they said 'if i lose my NYPD press pass I lose my job.' The press went on."

Via twitter.com, @Someonebequiet, "TEAR GASSING VIDEO: <http://yfrog.com/163yiz>."

@OccupyWallSt, "folks in #thepeopleskitchen are gassed, tackled, dragged by arms and legs, and all others are being barricaded out so they can't watch ."

@OccupyWallSt, "city council member

Ydanis Rodriguez beaten by #nypd and bleeding from head."

@KeithOlbermann, "the dumbest thing NYC could do to #Occupy is what they are doing right now. Suppression always has the opposite effect."

@OccupyWallSt, "arrestees for this morning are being released, all headed straight to Duarte Square ."

@OccupyLANews, "NYPD has learned tonight belongs to Occupy Wall Street. Though they have taken Zuccotti Park, the movement has been bolstered."
